

Jared Ingersoll has served as Librarian for Russian, Eurasian and East European Studies at Columbia University since 1999. He holds advanced degrees in History and Russian & East European Studies from Indiana University and in Library & Information Science from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. He is the author, most recently, of "Romanov's University: libraries, reading and literacy in imperial Russia's prisons," in Indiana Slavic Studies, 16 (2006).